All the District and national officials have shown a cordial interest and an appreciation of the importance of the work and the value of it to the joint select committee of Congress and to the National Capital.

The finance committee, made up of the presidents of the civic organizations represented in the joint citizens' committee, which has been raising the necessary money for the statistical experts, for the stenographic and other cierical services, and for printing, postage and office expenses, has received subscriptions from about 500 persons, chiefly in small amounts, which have not yielded all that is necessary, and, therefore, the committee would like to have at once additional checks for larger amounts, which may be made payable either to P.
